Pretty Summer Hat.

The color combination used in trimming the hat sketched above was exquisitely dainty and harmonious. The shape was slightly drooping with a very faint distinction between the crown and brim, the profile showing an almost continuous line, and was fashioned of ecru straw. Set high around the crown were two rows of pale pink crushed roses and on either side of the front were placed bunches of delicate purple lilacs. Loops of pale pink velvet ribbon lay flat against the brim, starting from beneath the rose wreaths. The new hats show a slight change in poise, being slightly elevated at one side. This does not mean that a sufficiently high bandeau is used to be noticeable, but merely to break the straight flat line in vogue last season.
